Journal Selection Services

If you have a journal in mind, then the fundamental question to pose is this: “Is the manuscript pertinent to the journal that I intend to publish in “Publication’s timeline,” “publication’s peer review,” “publication’s language,” “publication’s citations,” and “publication’s international focus”—ponder these terms before you zoom in on a particular journal. Because your manuscript’s observations are powerful and relevant, you must showcase your research in the right publication; moreover, circumvent rejection from the publisher with our support.

The aims and scope of the journal

Every journal that Pubrica has a tie-up with has a section on Aims & Scope which gives a brief introduction to the journal. Other topics include subjects covered, papers published, and peer-review conditions. Pubrica experts ensure that your paper meets the criteria outlined in this important section; in addition, you need to preempt chances of rejection by the publisher. Editors advise you on the Author’s Instructions section too. Style, wordage, guidelines, templates—these are the important things you need to know to successfully publish your work.
